Margaret Seidler is a retired Organization Development consultant and master trainer. Her practice focused on creating higher performance in both businesses and local communities. Her areas of expertise included managing polarizing challenges, emotional intelligence, teambuilding, conflict resolution and interpersonal communications.

Her formal education includes a BA and Master of Public Administration from the University of South Carolina. She has served as adjunct faculty at the University of Notre Dame’s Mendoza School of Business, The Rochester Institute of Technology of New York, the University of Minnesota’s Carlson School of Management and the US Chamber of Commerce’s Institute for Organization Management.

“Payne-ful” Business, Charleston’s Journey to Truth, shares the discovery of three generations of slave traders in her family. It has received two major national book awards, The Phillis Wheatley Award and the Afro-American Historical and Genealogical Society Book Award. The book is in its fourth printing.

Most recently, Margaret was honored with the 2025 South Carolina Governor’s Award in the Humanities. In the past two years, she has given book talks to more than 7000 people, seeking their help in creating a better future so that all Americans can thrive.
