Every Student has the Right to Read

Lindsey Ballenger is a nonprofit leader, entrepreneur, and community advocate with over 25 years of experience driving philanthropic initiatives, strategic partnerships, and systems-level change in Charleston. She is the Executive Director of the Lowcountry Literacy Project, where she spearheads efforts to make evidence-based reading instruction accessible to every child—regardless of zip code or circumstance—by equipping public school teachers with the Orton-Gillingham approach.

Lindsey's professional career spans leadership roles in development and community engagement at the College of Charleston Foundation, Water Mission, and the Coastal Community Foundation (Empower Charleston). Her expertise in corporate philanthropy has led to partnerships that align business goals with community impact, fueling initiatives that strengthen educational outcomes and remove barriers for vulnerable populations.

A graduate of Clemson University, Lindsey is a South Carolina native who has called Mount Pleasant home for the last 25 years, where she and her husband are raising their three teenage daughters.
