Lowcountry Orphan Relief

Sara Wallace is the Executive Director of Lowcountry Orphan Relief, a role she has held since September 2023. She brings a diverse professional background and a strong commitment to serving children and families in the Lowcountry.

Sara began her career in local television news as a producer before transitioning into administrative roles, including eight years with Blackbaud. From 2016 to 2018, she and her family lived in Guatemala, where they served as independent missionaries mentoring middle school students. After returning to Charleston, Sara spent five years as the Children's Minister at First Baptist Church, where she developed a passion for supporting children—work that ultimately led her to Lowcountry Orphan Relief.

Sara is married and the proud mother of two teenagers, ages 14 and 16.
